May it be asked whether the BISHOP of Vic-TORIA, who so admirably fills the Anostolic duties, if not of preaching the word to every nation, at least, of going to all parts of the world, took into his consideration, when | send the drufts to him. last in Hongkong, the nature of the foundar tion known as St. Paul's College? That signed them. He sent them to me when I was institution seems to be a thorough model of at Canton for my signature. I signed them Hongkong institutions generally,-all "outsides." The building is admirable; the mitre in this manner. The bill placed in my hands over the gate imposing; but where are the is only the third of exchange, and is not proscholars which the foundation was designed perly signed. It appears to be signed in my to support? Can anyone in Hongkong say signed both names, but the third, which was what was the nature of the original trust generally retained here, I sometimes signed on which the College was founded? To the best of our information at present, the ob- | acted myself. Bishop SMITH, who whatever his qualities or failings may have been in other respects, took a warm and carnest interest in the College, had numerous youths educated in a way which in some degree sustained the reputation and credit of the institution.—but it seems that from various circumstances, at the time Bishop ALFOED had come out, the pupils had come down to be merely a few boys; and these it was considered would be well enough cared for if they were sent to the Government Schools. Whether there are any pupils now, we are not guite certain, but at all events the building is sufficiently cleared of superfluities to become the recognised place of abode of the Bishop (when here) and the Colonial Chaplains for the time being; the presence of these ecclesiastics, and the golden mitre over the portal, being now apparently all that is left to show that the building is a College. How, we ask, does this matter stand? Is this the intention of the founders of the institution? If it is, well and good, but if not, might not some steps be taken to bring it back to. the original design?

Altogether, there is a great want of somebody to give a little stirring up to the eccles in the Colony, which have got into a very strange state of confusion. The resignation of the Rev. Mr. Pipen, considering the very short time the Bishop stopped here, was somewhat inexplicable, and is certainly now to be regretted, as the result is that the present acting Colonial Chaplain has an amount of work | the Chinese. (These were not the comprathrown upon his shoulders which would be heavy anywhere, and must be almost killing were brought against myself, Hassinbhoy Gooin a climate such as this. The present is, therefore, a very suitable time for the discussion of these matters; and with regard specially to St. Paul's College, it is to be hoped that some definite information may be forthcoming, before it is too late to bring the institution back to conformity with the intentions of its founders. That a suitable College in Hongkong would be a desirable institution very few can doubt, and it must be a thousand pities if, when one has been established, it should be allowed to slide off from its proper sphere into a name or at best a local habitation.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY AT UMRITSUR We regret to hear that the "beef row" at Unritaur has colminated in a terrible and serious traigdy. Our renders are aware that mow-loong to Hongkong merchant. for some time the Hindoos have been agitating against the batchers of Umritaur to obtain a mow-loong to Houghong merchant, decree forbidding the slaughter of cuttle and the sale of beef in the city. Their efforts fail. hing to Hongkong merchant. ed chiefly through the firmness of the Commissioner and the strength of the English and Mussolman party in the committee. One morning recently, about either one or two o'clock, a body | merchant to Yuet-loong. of armed Hindoos assembled and made a descent upon the Umritair elaughter-house, and attacked the butchers sleeping outside. The murderers were armed with swords and broad axes, and the butchers being unarmed and asleon, were unable to save themselves. Four butchers were literally hacked to pieces, and two others were so fearfully out up that one bus since died, and the other's life is despaired of. The night was a very dark one, and it will be merchant to Kin-nam. vary as to the sect they belonged to. From some indications found on the scene of the mansacre, it is suspected that the murderers belong to the Nihung sect. But another account states that the Akalies are suspected. The Akalies are a sort of fanatic Sikhs, a semi-sacerdotal class attached to the temples. They are the truculent looking fellows who wear conical hats about yard high, covered with small weapone and those steel chuckers or sharp rings which they can hurl with terrible precision and effect. They are respected and considerably feared. The Nihungs again are associated with all that is reckless and Bohemian. Their name indeed is a common expression in the Punjab to represent these qualities.

The affair, as may be anticipated, has caused some excitement, as it is expected that the matter will not end here. Bad passion on both sides have been aroused, and natives are already whispering that other members of the butcher fraternity have been marked out for destruction. The police are on the alert, and the chow, from this date. strictest investigation is proceeding .- undian

THE NEW LIGHT FOR THE COMMONS-(News of the World.)

Mr. Ayrton's project for setting up a lime-light on the top of the House of Commons, to let the world of London know when the House of Commons is sitting, seems so much like a satire that one might be excused for divesting it of a serious meaning. The blaze of lumindus lamps in the precincts of Parliament is already auggestive of an inadequate amount of light within the walls, and there needs no other reminder to inspire regret for the absence of such brilliant talents as were wont in other times to convey the force of argument in electric flashes and bring debates to a conclusion in a few hours, which are now extended through weeks and months in a dreary waste of words. There was no want of crowded lamps or of surmounting. lime light in the days of "old mon eloquent," the brightness of whose wit and the effulgence of whose oratory churmed attentive listeners and gave attraction to the debates to which the date. prosaic dulness of our living orators and patriots makes a painful contract. The intellect of the House of Commons of the present day may be designated as one of plain plodding and respectable medicority. The only respect in which our Parliament rises superior to the past is that of personal courtesy. The decorum of the House of Commons is unquestionable. No one would seriously think of uttering a word that could be buitful to the feelings of another member; as if impressed by the sentiment the venerable Dr. Watte desired to instil into the rising generation, that though dogs delight to bark and bite "for 'tis their nature to," human children of whatever growth should never let their angry passions-rise, members do not interrupt the debates by anything of a disorderly or pugnacious kind, that would give rise to anything like a apprehension of a free fight upon the floor. Such fears departed with the talents, and our Legislature has become, at any rate, the most polite in the world. If a bit of temper should, incautiously, be exhibited, an once to repentance and apology, But the respectability of the discussions in the House of Commons fails to reconcile its constituents to the lack of business there. We are getting on through the almanac; Whitsuntide is now sometime behind us, and the Session seems destined to be nearly barren of results. Mr. Gladstone wrings his hands as days and nights pass without the realisation of lates around him. Minsters are bewildered, consisting of five rooms and two verandalis. purposes, give expression to their discontent, Matters get worse every year. Sessions open with brilliant promises, which are eventually broken and cast to the winds. If all the bills and projects introduced and withdrawn were to be made a bonfire of on the top of the House of Commons, Mr. Ayrton's lime light might not be wanted to lot the world know where the House of Commons is.
